THE SKIN WALKER

Logline

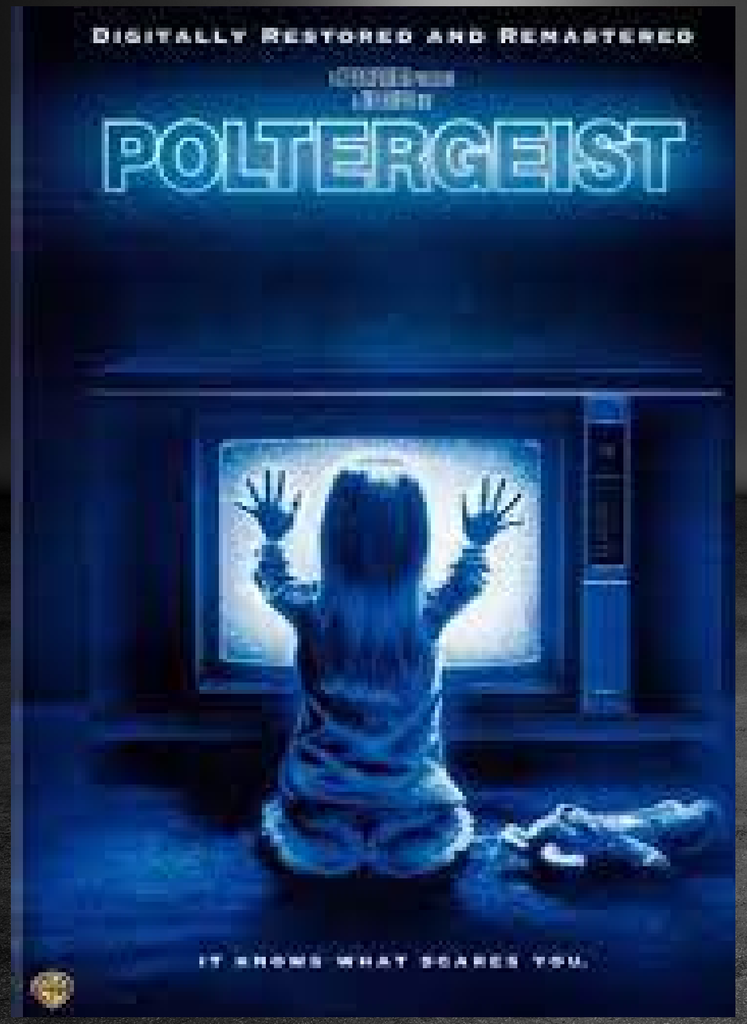

In 2017, a foreman on the Fort MacArthur base in San Pedro, California encounters violent paranormal activity and he must find a way to exorcise the demon that is on a mission to harvest the souls of his workers.

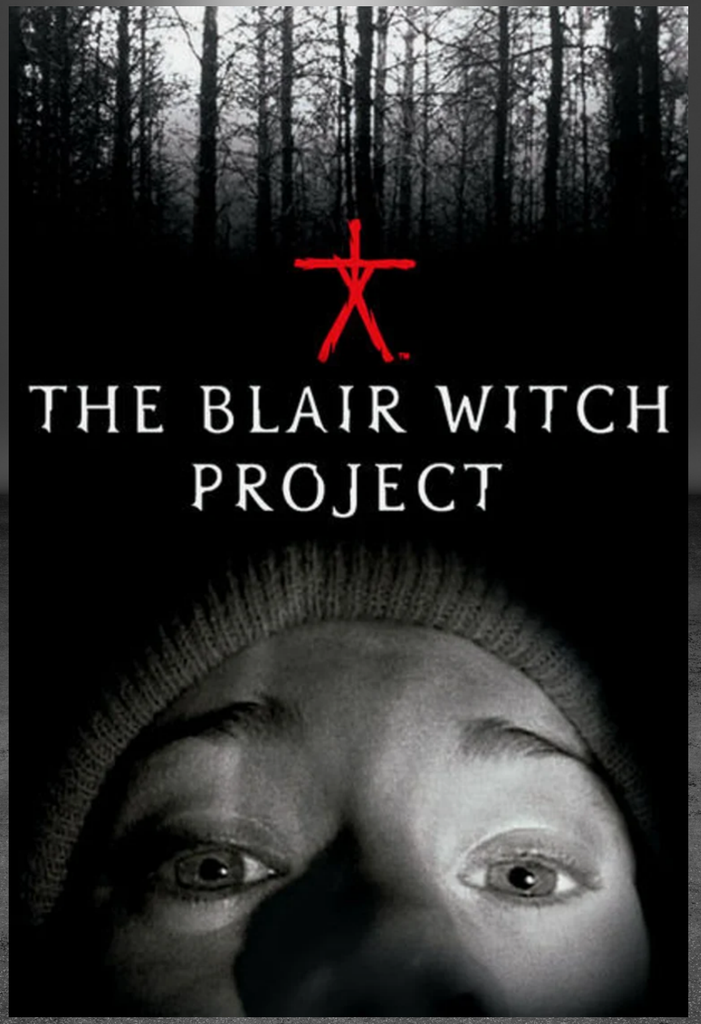

Synopsis

While watching the morning news, John and his wife Mary find out about the Jim Jones tragedy: the leader of an American religious cult and 900 of his followers are found dead, the result of a mass suicide murder by drinking a lethal potion of cyanide-poisoned Flavor-Aid. The dead bodies are being transported from the Jonestown settlement in Guyana to the Fort MacArthur base in San Pedro, California where John works as a maintenance man. When John goes to work that morning he finds out that he and his maintenance crew are to organize about a hundred wooden boxes of dead bodies in the basement of Building 425.

Years later, violent paranormal activity starts to shake up the lives of Fort MacArthur maintenance workers. A maintenance man working on the bollards gets decapitated by a flying bollard, a plumber working on the water pipes drowns as one of the pipes breaks, and an electrician falls off the ladder to his death when one of the light fixtures blows up in his face. When the evil entity follows John home, John and Mary figure out that the Fort Mac base is probably haunted by Jim Jones who shows up on John's bathroom mirror. The conflict now revolves around John as he tries to find a way to exorcise this evil entity out of the living world in order to stop the deaths, prevent the base from being shut down, and save his job.

After analyzing the accidents that the paranormal activity has caused, Mary decides that John must get Amy Allan from the paranormal television show, The Dead Files, involved. John approaches Rick, his boss, with the idea who agrees that something must be done to prevent any more deaths from occurring on that base. Ultimately, homicide detective Steve DiSchiavi and medium Amy Allan from the paranormal television show, The Dead Files, investigate Fort Mac and they both come to the conclusion that Jim Jones is haunting the base. Amy Allan recommends that John and Rick get a chaos magician and a Jesuit priest who successfully exorcise the evil entity off the premises. The Fort Mac base comes back to being a peaceful base.

Producer's Statement

I used to like watching television paranormal reality shows such as Ghost Adventures and The Dead Files for the "scary fun" of it but when evil entities sprang up in my life and ghosts became real, I found out it's no fun at all! It all started when I went to work at the Fort MacArthur base in San Pedro, CA. I did secretarial duties for the maintenance department. After a few months, I started hearing the ghost stories of people who worked there. One of the funny creepy stories was how a housekeeper at the Fort MacArthur Inn, a base hotel, ran out of the bathroom with her pants down because the roll of toilet paper started spinning like crazy by itself.

I figured that the base is really haunted when I found out that there is recorded video of the cameras at the BX, the convenience store of the base, showing Styrofoam cups being walked from one end of the counter to the other. There is also recorded video of the light fixtures in the gym blowing up and an orb flying around them as this is happening.

Then strange occurrences started happening around me. One of the maintenance workers was hit with a bollard on his head but was not decapitated. To this day, I wonder how he defied the law of physics and kept his head on his shoulders! He is not the only maintenance worker that has had freak accidents, there are others as well. Another one almost fell off a lift and yet another got his leg cut up by a lawn mower.

One bright sunny morning, I entered that so-called "ghostly gray dimension" when I saw my boss Rick's doppelganger (ghost that looks just like him) walking to the conference room as I was walking to the office. When I entered his office, he was sitting there and I wondered how the hell I saw him walking to the conference room when he was sitting in his chair all along.

What broke the camel's back was when I came down with insomnia to the point where I couldn't wake up in the morning to go to work. I believe that the demons lurking there caused this because I learned that demons can cause insomnia in my favorite show The Dead Files where it was revealed that the evil entities like to attack the mentally unstable and I suffer of bipolarity. It also followed me home and made my smoke alarm beep 3 times in intervals of 3, mocking the sign of the trinity making me aware that it is a demon.

I had also heard through the grapevine that many dead bodies of the Jim Jones' tragedy had been brought to this base from Guyana and housed in the basement of Building 425 (the location of the BX and the gym where paranormal activity has been recorded) in the late70's. That is when I started wishing that I could have Steve DiSchiavi and Amy Allan from The Dead Files come to the base to help us out to actually see what kind of evil entities we were really dealing with. I decided I wanted this to happen when I watched their Skin Walker episode where Steve's (an ex-Marine and former NYPD Homicide Detective) investigation reveals a fanatical preacher who led an armed revolt against his own church as Amy, a medium, encounters a twisted entity called a skin walker whose mission is to trap the souls of the deceased. I then figured that Jim Jones did something similar...so is Jim Jones a skin walker haunting the base?

That is what I want to find out and I want to bring Amy Allan and Steve DiSchiavi to the silver screen to show what can happen to innocent bystanders, the several maintenance workers that have had freak accidents, to scare the living shit out of you with real shit like they did me!
